Forecast For Strathclyde
Issued by Met Office Aberdeen
at 0400 on Friday 11 Jun 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Sunny spells and, mainly morning, showers.

Today:
A bright day with occasional showers, these mainly through the morning. The afternoon then looks largely dry with more in the way of sunshine. A little cooler for most than Thursday with occasionally fresh westerly winds. Maximum temperature 18 deg C (64 deg F).

Tonight:
A mainly dry evening and night with some late sunny then clear spells. A much fresher night than of late. Minimum temperature 7 deg C (45 deg F).

Saturday:
A bright, dry morning with sunny spells, although cloud is expected to increase towards midday with some patchy rain likely across Argyll during the afternoon. Occasionally fresh westerly winds easing. Maximum temperature 17 deg C (63 deg F).

Outlook for Sunday to Tuesday:
Rather cloudy Sunday with occasional rain, the rain clearing overnight to leave Monday dry with sunny spells. Tuesday starts dry and bright but the afternoon cloudier with rain later.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.